"The Battle of Appomattox Station — 1865"

by Cris Calkins, ACH Nat'l Historic Park

On the morning of April 8, 1865, Union cavalry commanded by General Phil Sheridan learned that three of General Robert E. Lee's ration trains were waiting at Appomattox Station for the retreating Confederate Army. With the troopers of General George Custer in the van, the calvary rode the 28 miles from Prospect and came in sight of the station about 4 p.m. Charging the station, they quickly scattered the Confederate guard thus capturing the trains. With the loss of these trains, carrying badly needed commissary supplies for Lee's Army of Northern Virginia, railroad service in the Confederacy virtually came to an end.

The captured trains were dispatched towards Farmville and the Union cavalry departed in a north - westward direction from the station.

At approximately the same time as the capture of the trains, the advance element of Lee's retreating army approached the intersection of the Appomattox Station Rd. (U.S. 460), Red Oak Rd. (Va. 26), and the Lynchburg Stage Road (Va. 24). Under command of General Reuben Walker, C.S.A., it consisted of about 100 pieces of artillery, several hundred baggage wagons, and a number of ambulances. It had been briefly encamped in the area of the intersection of the roads when Custer's men came upon it. The Union calvary, sending charge after charge against Walker's

Would You Like The Homecoming Game "Football"

Would you like to have the Homecoming Football "game ball" for a keepsake, to give to your favorite Raider or to do whatever you would like to do with it?

Through the cooperation of head coach, Jerry Robinson, and his staff at the Appomattox County High School, the "game ball" has again this year been donated to the Appomattox County Rescue Squad to be used in an effort to raise funds for their Canteen Fund which is completely down to a zero balance. Funds from the Canteen fund come from money-making projects sponsored by members of the ARCS and are used to have the annual installation of officers dinner each year funds are taken from the contributions you make to the Rescue Squad for this purpose.

Friday, October 26th, is Homecoming at Appomattox County High School, with the kick-off at 8:00 p.m. when the mighty Raiders take on a strong team from Rustburg.
